

ABSTRACT

Disclosed is a chimeric protein comprising a bacteriorhodopsin polypeptide sequence and a G protein-coupled receptor sequence. Also disclosed is a genetic construct comprising encoding a chimeric bacteriorhodopsin polypeptide sequence and a G protein-coupled receptor sequence. The chimeric protein of the present invention can be used to evaluate various agents for the ability to interact with loop 3 of a G protein-coupled receptor.

15

20

25

30

35